TESS OF THE D'URBERVILLES

BY

THOMAS HARDY

"Tess of the d'Urbervilles" is possibly the finest, certainly the most popular, novel of the famous writer whose remains were recently accorded the supreme honour of burial in Westminster Abbey. The reception which it had when it first appeared, nearly forty years ago, was not wholly favourable, as it aroused the antagonism of a number of strict persons who considered it to be a dangerous attack upon morality. But this criticism has since, with the arrival of a less narrow generation, passed away, leaving the book admired on all sides as an undoubted masterpiece, as indeed one of the world's great stories.

THE CROCK OF GOLD

JAMES STEPHENS

Mr. James Stephens, the distinguished Irish poet and novelist, wrote in "The Crock of Gold" what has so far proved to be his most generally admired work in prose. The book is difficult to label, being neither a fairy tale, nor an essay, nor an allegory, nor a novel, although it possesses features of all these forms. Perhaps as good a description as any was that supplied by a reviewer in Punch, when he described it as "a fairy fantasy, elvish, grotesque, realistic, allegorical, humorous, satirical, idealistic and poetical by turns, and—very beautiful."

THE CATHEDRAL

BY

HUGH WALPOLE

Mr. Hugh Walpole, who is of course one of our most distinguished living novelists, has written in "The Cathedral" a book which has secured a popularity unusual even for his work. The late Sir Robertson Nicoll, a singularly reliable judge of a book, described it as "a delight to read" and "the most powerful of all its author's writings." Another critic, reviewing the story in The Nation and The Athenæum, expressed the flattering opinion that it was "perhaps the best novel of ecclesiastical life that has appeared since the days of Trollope."

THE ENCHANTED APRIL

BY THE AUTHOR OF

"ELIZABETH AND HER GERMAN GARDEN"

This is one of the most delightful novels of the witty and humorous lady who chooses to be known as "The Author of 'Elizabeth and Her German Garden.'" The enthusiasm with which it has been received by the press will be seen by the following extracts from a very large number of laudatory reviews.

"It will be enormously popular, and it will deserve its popularity to the full."—The Daily Telegraph.

"'The Enchanted April' is an enchanted book."—The Daily Chronicle.

"The book keeps one in a diffused ripple of enjoyment from beginning to end."—The Illustrated London News.

"'The Enchanted April' is Elizabeth at her adorable best."—Country Life.

ROBBERY UNDER ARMS

BY

ROLF BOLDREWOOD

This story of life and adventure in the bush and the goldfields of Australia is one of the most widely appreciated volumes of the kind ever written. It has been reprinted, since the year 1888, when it was first published, no fewer than forty-four times. Readers wearied of the average novel of to-day, in which nothing of any consequence happens, will do well to secure this tale, where the excitement is continuous. Incidentally, they may also be advised to deposit the volume, until perused, in a very secret place, as otherwise when, in a moment of leisure, it is required, it is almost sure to be found in somebody else's possession.

ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND AND THROUGH THE LOOKING-GLASS

BY

LEWIS CARROLL

With all the Illustrations by SIR JOHN TENNIEL

There can be few works written for the young which have given so much delight as the immortal couple, "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking-Glass." In connection with the present issue it should be specially noted that the two works appear in one two-shilling volume, and that all the original illustrations by Sir John Tenniel are included.

[Messrs. Macmillan's editions of Lewis Carroll are the only ones which contain these copyright illustrations.]
