HOME UNIVERSITY LIBRARY OF MODERN KNOWLEDGE

EVERY volume of the Library is specially written for it by a recognised authority of high standing as an introduction to, or survey of, a department of knowledge or some large subject within the domains of History and Geography, Literature and Art, Science, Social Science, Religion and Philosophy.

Each volume is complete and independent; but the series has been planned to form a comprehensive whole.

Each volume runs to 256 pages, and contains a short Bibliography of the subject; many of the volumes are illustrated.

HOME UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

"Five new volumes have just been added to the excellent Home University Library of Modern Knowledge, to which we have repeatedly called attention. The volumes all deal with questions of importance, and it has always to be remembered that every work in the Library has been specially written for it by a recognised authority of high standing."—Westminster Gazette.

"The 90 volumes which the series now includes embrace many works indispensable to all who are interested in literature, science, or philosophy. Some of these little books are beyond all praise—and indeed any praise of the series generally would now be superfluous."—Irish Journal of Education.
